TRADITIONAL STYLE

Traditional design style offers classic details, sumptuous furnishings, and an abundance of accessories. It is rooted in European sensibilities. Traditional homes often feature dark, finished wood, rich colour palettes, and a variety of textures and curved lines. Furnishings have elaborate and ornate details and fabrics, like velvet, silk and brocade, which may include a variety of patterns and textures. There's depth, layering and dimensionality within most traditional designs.

TRANSITIONAL STYLE

Transitional interior design style is an elusive style that spans multiple styles tying traditional or long-standing styles together with modern or contemporary design elements. It's extremely popular right now among designers. In fact, it's very easy to confuse contemporary with transitional and in fact for both types it's often easy to argue a particular interior design is one or the other.

RUSTIC & INDUSTRIAL STYLE

Rustic design is drawn from natural inspiration, using raw and often unfinished elements including wood and stone. Rustic design may incorporate accessories from the outdoors with warmth emulating from the design and architectural details that may include features like vaulted ceilings adorned with wood beams or reclaimed wood floors. Many designs now integrate rustic design with more modern furnishings and accessories.

MODERN STYLE

Modern is a broad design term that typically refers to a home with clean, crisp lines, a simple colour palette and the use of materials that can include metal, glass and steel. Modern design employs a sense of simplicity in every element, including furniture. A word that's commonly used to describe modern style is sleek, and there is not a lot of clutter or accessories involved with a modern style.designs.
